

Transforming the lives of chronically ill children, and their families, shifting all from surviving to thriving - until cures are found.

So much has changed, yet the most basic of life's priorities have not. Family and friends still matter most. I hope yours are all healthy and safe.

Healthcare workers on the front lines are regularly, and repeatedly, heralded as HEROES. But what is a hero? Defined as someone "admired or idealized for courage, outstanding achievements, or noble qualities", these brave and selfless people have definitely earned the title!

So too, have the doctors, nurses, and countless therapists - of numerous specialties - who care for Bounce Kiddos round the clock, day in and day out. Less visible, especially when they provide care at home, these healthcare workers are HEROES BEHIND THE HEADLINES.

They keep their patients alive and they improve their quality of life. And, now they are a vital resource far less accessible as the healthcare system is swamped with Corona virus patients and we must all live quarantined.

This adds to the stress, anxiety, and fear Bounce Families face during this pandemic. They already have so much to contend with. It's unfair, but real, and just one of the reasons for our Super Hero Bounce Back Kit family care packages - and all we are doing to help our families 'bounce'.

Stay safe. Stay strong. Bounce.

Welcome our new Bounce interns

Amy Regenbaum

Amy Regenbaum is a junior at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, studying communication sciences and disorders for a career in speech pathology, with a minor in health and humanities. Amy is passionate about working with children, so interning at Bounce seemed like the perfect way to bring a smile to children and families.

Claire Heinle

Claire Heinle is senior at Michigan State University, working towards her BFA in graphic design. Design has been Claire's passion since early high school and her goal has been to utilize this in the professional world. Fortunately, Claire was introduced to Bounce and is thrilled to be working in such a positive and uplifting environment.
